Message from the Chair of the Board of Directors

The Cecil County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors is excited to present our annual Community Guide and Business Directory.

The past year proved to be another demanding and, at times, difficult one for all of us, but we rose to the challenge through characteristics that I believe differentiate the Cecil County Chamber from our counterparts: flexibility, teamwork, unity, and resiliency. Flexibility is more than a buzzword for chamber members; it is how we steered through the clamor of 2021. We continue to work and collaborate in new and different ways to serve the needs of our members, customers, employees and business partners.

While we were not able to conduct our regular meetings in the way many of you are accustomed to, the chamber's outstanding staff navigated any and all obstacles to get the job done--from successful ribbon cuttings to in-person and virtual meetings. We are grateful to you for working with the staff and the board through these unusual times. We don't take your trust in the chamber for granted.

"Growing Together," our 2022 theme, couldn't be more appropriate as the county continues to grow and evolve. As new businesses call the county home, rest assured the chamber will be here to provide the resources and services they need to help them succeed through ongoing advocacy efforts and shared networking opportunities.

Thank you to each of our members for your support. We are proud to serve the community and look forward to a prosperous 2022.

Chair, Cecil County Chamber Board of Directors
APGFCU Business Development Director
– Cecil County

Message from the Executive Director

It is an honor to serve and support the Cecil County community as the Executive Director of the Cecil County Chamber of Commerce. Together with Katie Lewis, the Director of Events and Communications, we are here to Inform, Promote, Advocate, and Connect on behalf of the business community. The Chamber mission is to advocate for a strong, viable economic environment in Cecil County. We accomplish our mission and goals through strong relationships with community businesses and leaders, through our many virtual and in person events, and through sharing information and resources.

The Chamber offers many ways to be involved, stay connected, meet new people, and have your voice heard. We have strong Peer Groups, such as our Government Relations Committee, the Nonprofit Roundtable, our Long-Term Care Roundtable, the Network Marketing Roundtable and our Chamber Ambassadors.

We continue to experience challenging times in our families and our community. When there is challenge, there is opportunity. Opportunities can inspire us to learn, create, innovate, and think outside the box. It is a time for awareness of our own well being and the well being of those around us. It is a time for reflection, appreciation and gratitude. We become stronger when we are challenged and tested and when we rise the occasion.

I am inspired and motivated by the strength and resolve of our business community to remain successful and relevant, and to offer assistance to others who may be struggling. Our Chamber has remained successful and relevant due to the support of our Board of Directors, our Corporate and Community Partners, and our members. It is a privilege and pleasure to be part of the continued growth of Cecil County. Thank you for your support and belief in the Cecil County Chamber of Commerce.

History of the Chamber

Supporting Local Business for Over Three Decades

In the 1920s, chambers of commerce were established to serve as economic development entities, helping businesses grow, supporting an educated workforce, establishing practices for workforce development, and steering business-friendly legislation.

The Cecil County Chamber of Commerce began as a subsidiary of the New Castle County Chamber in Delaware. It was formed primarily as an outlet for the New Castle Chamber's insurance sales program in Maryland.

In 1987, the Board of Directors of the Cecil County Chamber voted to declare independence from the New Castle County Chamber, and a part-time Executive Director was hired. On January 1, 1988, the Cecil County Chamber became a completely autonomous entity.

Through the efforts of several influential Cecil County citizens, a capital campaign was organized. Approximately $30,000 was donated by local government and businesses. These monies, along with the charter members' initial dues investments, enabled the Chamber to survive for the first couple of years, while becoming established and developing its own programs and fundraising activities.

Today the Chamber's membership is approaching 500. The organization is governed by a Board of Directors consisting of local business representatives. Two full time employees perform the day-to-day responsibilities. In 2017 the Chamber was named a "Most Small Business Friendly Chamber" by the Maryland Small Business Administration.

Cecil County's local business community has needs and interests similar to those who were served by the very first chambers of commerce nearly a century ago. The Board, staff and volunteers of the Cecil County Chamber of Commerce are committed to meeting those needs and helping our member businesses grow and prosper.

Fairwinds Farm & Stables

By Marcella Peyre-Ferry
Staff Writer

Fairwinds Farm & Stables is a working horse farm owned and operated by JoAnn and Ted Dawson. Located in the heart of Maryland horse country, it features something for everyone. Fairwinds Farm & Stables offers the best in overnight horse boarding for equine travelers including room to stretch on 52 acres of fenced pastures and paddocks, indoor and outdoor riding rings with jumps, and a cross country course—perfect for keeping everyone in shape while traveling.

Travelers can relax in country comfort at the Dawson family's restored Victorian bed and breakfast. They can enjoy the farm, ride one of the trails, fish in the pond, or just relax.

"We'll help make your stay refreshing and memorable," JoAnn Dawson said.

For those who would like to extend their stay, this is the perfect place to have a relaxing, riding holiday.

In addition to overnight horse boarding, Fairwind Farm & Stables also offers birthday parties, horse shows, pony rides, horse-drawn carriages, summer camp, hay rides, trail rides, tea parties, weddings, corporate retreats, special events and a gift shop.

At Fairwinds Farm & Stables, the focus is primarily on English riding, which includes hunter/jumper and dressage lessons for riders ages 8 and up, beginners through advanced. Western lessons are also available. Quiet, well-trained horses of many breeds are available for lessons, trail rides and day camp.

"As a Horse Discovery Center, we are very open and welcoming to the public, to anyone who wants to learn about horses as well as ride them," JoAnn Dawson said. "All ages can come and watch a lesson, see how we operate, or just visit or groom the horses. In addition to lessons, we welcome kids for pony rides and families for carriage rides."

In 2019, Fairwinds Farm served as one of the locations for the DBM Film production, "Hope's Legacy," featuring Dyan Cannon.

After the success of the film, JoAnn Dawson was inspired to submit her own script to DBM Films. Her story "Cream of the Crop" is centered around efforts to preserve family farmland for future generations. The film was shot at eight locations in Cecil County in the summer of 2021, with a release date set for some time in 2022.

Fairwinds Farm and Stables has been named Cecil County Outstanding Farm Operation, Tourism Business of the Year, and is in the Cecil County Business Hall of Fame.

For more information visit the website at www.fairwindsstables.com. Information on the film can be found at www.creamofthecropfilm.com or joanndawson.com.

WELCOME TO CECIL COUNTY

Steeped in History, rich in Natural Resources, full of Promise

Beautiful Cecil County is tucked along the upper banks of the Chesapeake Bay, midway between Philadelphia and Baltimore. Two hundred miles of shoreline, open space, eight incorporated and inviting towns, and wonderful rural attractions make Cecil County a great place to spend a day...or a lifetime.

Neighboring communities offer a unique character and fascinating history, as well as youth sports teams, family friendly events, a community hospital, volunteer opportunities, and wonderful outdoor recreation.

Cecil County's scenery is frequently sought after by nature photographers, and locally owned, award-winning restaurants make Cecil County a favorite choice as a dining destination.

It's Cecil County's unique charisma and eclectic mix that make it a wonderful destination for residents and visitors, as well as companies who consider "quality of life" to be important for their employees.

Cecil County's location on Interstate 95 provides easy access to the Mid-Atlantic region, as well as to BWI and Philadelphia airports. While being located in the midst of a heavily populated corridor, the County offers an oasis of green, with 15,000 acres of pristine parkland and special charm. The views are spectacular, and its personality is enchanting.

The eight incorporated municipalities within Cecil County are Cecilton, Charlestown, Chesapeake City, Elkton, North East, Perryville, Port Deposit and Rising Sun.

A Message from our County Executive

Greetings Cecil County Chamber of Commerce!

As we emerge from the COVID-19 pandemic, Cecil County Government continues to modernize our services to meet the needs of our residents and business community. Our recently launched OpenGov platform will allow customers to access government services entirely online, including permitting, plans review, utility, and tax payment, and more. This will streamline many of the County's services while saving taxpayer dollars.

We also launched a new communications system, GovDelivery. GovDelivery will allow residents to sign up to receive updates from Cecil County Government, and its Departments, to their email or phone, via text message. As we expand our notification options, residents will be able to pinpoint what content and updates they want to receive and how they receive them. Keeping citizens informed is vital for our operation, whether it be road closure notifications, event announcements, or community service initiatives.

Cecil County was able to institute these modernizations while continuing to be fiscally responsible with taxpayer dollars. Last year, my administration implemented the first property tax cut in the history of Cecil County's Charter Form of government for both residents and businesses with unanimous support of the County Council.

I look forward to continuing to be able to provide tax relief to the people of Cecil County this year.

We have more exciting days ahead of us and I look forward to working with our business community as we make Cecil a great place to live, work, visit, and raise a family. Our Department of Economic Development stands ready to assist with a variety of programs focused on helping your business grow. Please never hesitate to reach out to my staff or me if we can be of assistance to you or your family.

Sincerely,

Danielle Hornberger

LOCATION AND TRANSPORTATION

Strategic Access to Key Markets

Cecil County's desirable Mid-Atlantic location on the Interstate 95 I-95 corridor in northeastern Maryland has made it one of the region's most sought after business locations. Situated midway between the metropolitan areas of Baltimore and Philadelphia, Cecil County's strategic location offers businesses overnight access to markets in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia and Washington, DC. Cecil County's well-developed transportation system offers easy access via land, rail and water.

On November 14, 1963, President John F. Kennedy came to Cecil County to dedicate the area's first modern-day toll road. Today I-95, along with US Route 40, supports the Growth Corridor. Three interchanges Perryville, North East and Elkton provide direct access for each of the County's eight commercial industrial parks.

Main lines for CSX and Norfolk Southern railroads, plus Amtrak commuter lines, provide vital rail transportation linkages.

The Chesapeake and Delaware (C&D) Canal provides easy connections to the Chesapeake Bay and the Port of Baltimore for both commercial transport and leisure travel. Millions of tons of cargo are transported through the Canal annually. The US Army Corps of Engineers project office

Tidal Creek Growers

By Marcella Peyre-Ferry
Contributing Writer

Tidal Creek Growers is a strictly wholesale nursery business, selling exclusively to landscapers and garden centers throughout the Mid-Atlantic region.

Tidal Creek Growers was founded in 2002 by third-generation grower Jake Van Wingerden.

“My grandfather immigrated here in the 1950s from Holland,” he explained. “He was a pioneer in the containerized bedding plant industry. My father and uncles were also in the business.”

Originally from the Doylestown, Pa. area, Wingerden move to Colorado after high school when his father relocated his business. When he was 26, he decided to branch out on his own. He and his wife moved back east to put down roots near her family.

Tidal Creek Growers now has locations in Earlvile and Davidsonville in Maryland, shipping plants by the truckload to points as far north as Connecticut, to points as far south as Virginia, and out to western Pennsylvania.

The modern, heated greenhouses produce containerized plants in peat moss year-round. Annuals and perennials, flowers and vegetables, bedding plants and more, they produce the pots of plants that garden centers display and sell to consumers. It could be spring bedding plants and starter vegetable plants, mums and pansies in the fall or poinsettias for winter. Tidal Creek Growers’ most popular products include petunias, tulips marigolds, and geraniums.

“Maryland is a nice central location from a distribution standpoint, and the weather is mild,” Wingerden said. “We try to be very modern with our production practices. We try to be very environmentally friendly and sustainable as well, that’s a very important piece for us.”

New items are available every day as plants reach their peak. The plant selection also changes from year to year, as hardier varieties are developed and new flower color choices become available.

“There’s always a new color or variety—a better strain,” Wingerden said. “Vegetables are a big part of our business these days. We do a lot of pepper and tomato plants, the starter plants you would buy and put in your own garden. There’s always a new tomato variety people out there want to try.”

While people were spending more time at home during the pandemic, many of them came back to gardening or started it as a new hobby, leading to a growth in the industry in recent years.

“We’re experiencing quite a bit of success as far as sales and demand, and new people wanting out product,” Wingerden said. “We’re a local agricultural business. It’s what modern agriculture looks like.”

Tidal Creek Growers is expanding, with the recent purchase of a farm outside Cecilton.

“We’re going to build a brand-new modern campus that will allow us to consolidate our two facilities into one and set ourselves up to be very efficient and sustainable for the long term,” Wingerden said.

With the Bainbridge Logistics Center about to begin construction, Cecil County is poised to become a major connector for business transportation along the I-95 corridor, as well as bring as many as 1,500 good-paying jobs

BAINBRIDGE:

The new hub of progress

By Richard L. Gaw

In 1999, the Bainbridge Development Corporation (BDC) was founded in order to create a strategic and sustainable plan to develop the former Bainbridge Naval Center.

Utilizing the vision of its board of directors, partnering contractors, consultants, area residents and with the help of the U.S. Navy, the BDC introduced a surefire model for the future several years ago that would create a multi-use community of commercial, office and public space that would also include as many as 1,200 housing units. It was a master plan that would bring in every component of smart-growth opportunity needed to stimulate nearby Port Deposit and all of Cecil County – jobs, open space,

1.7 million square feet in size.

business and residences.

When contamination was detected in the soil on the property, however, the original idea was scrapped – to the dismay of the BDC and its many partnering agencies. The plan that followed became the transformative stuff of what happens when stakeholders erase one idea and build another.

The new Phase 1 project, titled the Bainbridge Logistics Center, located off of Jacob Tome Highway in Port Deposit, received final project sign-off in November and this spring will begin Phase I of what will become a 440-acre, four-building complex that will serve as a key logistics and hub for innovative businesses and corporations that will provide up to 3.6 million square feet of Grade A distribution space.

Pre-construction meetings have been held, and the construction of two road systems and installation of water and sewer systems are expected to be completed by the Fall of 2022.

Eventually, the Bainbridge Logistics Center will consist of Building A at 1.73 million square feet, Building B at 1.02 million square feet, Building C at 605,280 square feet and Building D, which will be 378,000 square feet (exact square footage subject to change).

In between the facilities, hundreds of acres of green space will help beautify the site, with long-term plans to provide accessibility to the nearby Tome School and eventually to Port Deposit.

Prior to the transfer, the BDC addressed any environmental concerns, cleared all vegetation, and installed necessary sediment and erosion controls, in partnership with master developer MTPM LLC., the U.S. Navy.

"It was important for us to handle all of those activities up front in order to get us to a point that we could transfer the property and allow the developer to get all of the necessary permits and approvals and start on the project," said BDC Executive Director Toni Sprenkle. "It was a multi-year process to reach a compromise that best suits all parties. We didn't want this to be a financial burden on the U.S. Navy, and we also needed to ensure that the developer can have a successful project, that is also productive for the surrounding community."

100 million potential customers along the I-95 corridor

While the roster of future tenants at the facility is still in early stages, it's a win-win for any business who locates its logistics, storage, and distribution operations at Bainbridge. Strategically located along the I-95 corridor, the eventual companies who will develop on the site will have access to East Coast cities like Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New York City – and nearly 100 million potential customers.

In addition to its $400 capital investment, Baltimore-based MRP Industrial -- the project's Phase I developer -- is also making a substantial investment in the facility's infrastructure.

"For large companies and retailers who want to upgrade their infrastructure to better manage the transportation services of their goods, the Bainbridge Logistics Center's location is perfect," Sprenkle said. "When many people think about warehouses and industrial buildings, they think of gray cinder block facilities, but the technology and the sophistication in these centers will be incredible. The conveyor systems in these buildings can be valued at over $100 million, and most facilities are complimented by training to show staff how to use this sophisticated equipment."

With over 40 industrial buildings in Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey that total nearly 18 million square feet of distribution space, MRP Industrial has become one of the most successful industrial real estate developers in the Mid-Atlantic region.

In 2017, MRP Industrial served as the project developer for Prudential (PGIM)'s vacant parcel of land located in Aberdeen. After a joint marketing effort, MRP constructed a 250,000 square-foot facility for PrimeSource, a national building products company with a distribution network throughout North, Central and South America.

A second nearby project is Franklin Square II, a 192,000 square foot facility located within White Marsh Commerce Center in Baltimore County that is used by Industrial Income Trust (IIT), who acquired the approved development parcel as part of a portfolio acquisition in 2012.

As many as 1,500 sophisticated jobs

As the Phase I stage of the Bainbridge Logistics Center was first being unveiled, it was immediately apparent that the project's transformative development would bring job creation and economic growth to the surrounding community.

Several years ago, MRP Industrial Principal Dr. Reid Townsend gave the BDC board a presentation in which he hinted at the project's great potential by referring to MRP Industrial's past successes that have included attracting businesses to their industrial centers.

Townsend anticipated that the first phase of the Bainbridge Logistics Center would create up to 1,500 sophisticated jobs for those in the warehouse and logistics industry, not including additional jobs for those who will help in the trucking transportation of goods throughout the Northeast corridor.

While the Bainbridge Logistics Center's economic impact will be felt throughout the county, there is one town just down the road that may reap the benefits of its close proximity to the center most. Sprenkle said that the Bainbridge Logistics Center will produce the tax base, amenities, resources and the jobs and small business reinvestment that is needed to revitalize Port Deposit, in order to draw new residents and recruit shop owners to open a business along Main Street, for instance.

"When the Naval Center closed, it devastated Port Deposit, because at one time, there were 38,000 people on the base and it produced 70 percent of the local economy," Sprenkle said. "The primary goal of the BDC is to provide financial opportunities while at the same time maintain Port Deposit as an historic town, but in order to do that, there needs to be job creation and tax revenue to invest in improvements and amenities.

"With Phase I, Port Deposit could potentially double their operating budget in just one year, which will allow them to invest in properties and clean up a park in order to slowly make the town more appealing for folks to visit here and potentially relocate here."

When Sprenkle first arrived at the BDC in 2014, the non-profit group was in the thick of maneuvering itself past environmental findings, potential liabilities while at the same time seeing the goalposts of a project to bring a mixed-use development to Bainbridge move farther and farther away from their sights.

Now, with the start of the Bainbridge Logistics Center about to move forward, Sprenkle reflected on what it took the BDC to get here.

"It took years of thinking outside of the box in order to reimagine the future," she said. "We would not have been able to persevere without the input from our elected officials, who have facilitated discussions with leadership in the U.S. Navy and Department of Defense.

"Years ago, Maryland was never looked at as development friendly, but over the past five years, we have taken on the mantle of being more open for development and progress. The Bainbridge Logistics Center will become a part of that development, and I think many will be surprised to see the ripple effect that this project will have, not just on the local community, but across the state and the region.

"Collectively, we will begin to reap the benefits of development, new jobs, updated road systems and small business development in Port Deposit. In terms of potential, the sky is the limit."

OUR TOWNS

Eclectic Charm, Scenic Beauty, Rich History

Cecilton

Cecilton owes its existence to August Herman, an immigrant to America in 1633 and subject of heroic legend. He was the builder and first Lord of Bohemia Manor. Herman made several attempts to establish a town named for his friend Cecilius Calvert in lower Cecil County, but, uncharacteristically, he was not successful. Several generations later, a descendant again took up the task and founded a town that survived. That was Cecilton, incorporated in 1864. Located between the Bohemia and Sassafras Rivers, which attract a great deal of seasonal tourism to the town, it is centered at the largest crossroads south of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal. Cecilton is the hub of community, public facilities and services offered in lower Cecil County. The town continues to provide a hometown look and feel even though it is within close proximity to a growing region. Individuals can enjoy services, benefits and amenities of traditional urban services, but in the middle of the beauty, peacefulness and quiet countryside of rural life. The town is surrounded by farmland that is an important component of its history and economy, much of which has been placed in agricultural preservation programs, ensuring that the town will maintain its rural character. Cecilton is a small town offering something for everyone, with a strong commitment to preserving a high quality of life in a quiet residential community that is without a doubt "The Way Life Should Be."

Charlestown

Located where the North East River meets the Chesapeake Bay, Charlestown was an active shipping center in its early days. In 1742 the colonial village became the first incorporated town in Cecil County, and briefly served as the County seat. Although today Charlestown is peaceful and primarily residential, you'll also find marinas, growing businesses, several restored colonial structures, and a wharf that's quite a popular place to cast a line and catch a fish.

Chesapeake City

Once known as the “Village of Bohemia,” Chesapeake City was incorporated in 1839 shortly after the construction and opening of the Chesapeake & Delaware Canal. Today it is the only town in Maryland situated on a working commercial canal. Most of its interesting 19th-century architecture remains intact, and the historic area on the south bank is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Chesapeake City is a destination town widely known for its unique inland view of ocean-going vessels, proudly preserved and displayed reminders of its history, and friendly hospitality.

Travelers discover fine dining, picturesque stores, art galleries, outdoor concerts, seasonal events, bed & breakfasts, hiking/bicycling trails, and an outstanding museum showcasing the history of the Canal. From its origin as a rough and rowdy boomtown, through an era of dispiriting depression, Chesapeake City has emerged as a charming and interesting place to live and visit. Chesapeake City is truly the “Hidden Treasure of the Chesapeake”.

Elkton

Elkton is located on the colonial highway of America. Our country's forefathers navigated its waterways and traveled its roads when heading north to Philadelphia, or south to Virginia. Once known as Head of Elk named by Captain John Smith, it sits at the northern headwaters of the Chesapeake Bay. Elkton played a significant role in both the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812. Many of the town's beautiful colonial structures remain today, surrounded by buildings that reflect an active business community. The once infamous "marriage capital" has developed into a thriving economic arena for service and retail industries, several large manufacturers, and Union Hospital. Office buildings, courthouses, the hospital, and retail establishments share space with history in Elkton, which has been the County seat since 1787.

Elkton is proud to represent Cecil County with Maryland Main Street and Arts and Entertainment District designations.

North East

The North East River played a significant role in the early years of this town. Mills were built along its shores, farms prospered, and local fishermen found the area to be rich in stock. One of its churches, St. Mary Anne's Episcopal Church, dates back to the early 1700s, and has one of the oldest graveyards in the state. Today the neighborly town enjoys a charming renovation and is a tourist destination for visitors who like regional foods, boating, history, and antiques and collectibles shopping. A few miles south of town is Elk Neck State Park, surrounded on three sides by water with a breathtaking view next to the Turkey Point Light House.

Along the banks of the Susquehanna River lies the charming Town of Perryville. An area steeped in history, you'll find the historic Rodgers Tavern, which was frequented by General George Washington, Principio Iron Works, and the Perryville Train Station. Outdoor enthusiasts will be delighted by the abundance of recreational activities available throughout the town, including a boat ramp, transient pier, kayak and canoe launch, fishing pier, athletic fields, playgrounds, and pavilion rentals available at the Town's four community parks. Perryville also boasts Maryland's first casino and is looking forward to the construction of Great Wolf Lodge. Port Deposit

Historic Port Deposit is nestled between a granite cliff and the banks of the Susquehanna River. The tiny village was a place where men made fortunes in granite quarrying and shipping sellable goods on arks and rafts from the "port of deposit" on the waterfront. Fishing was also a big industry with a plentiful supply of shad and rockfish. Port Deposit is a well-preserved, historic, mid-nineteenth century, industrial town, and the architecture is evidence of the artistry and craftsmanship of the period. The commercial waterfront has been replaced with a vibrant residential community, Marina Park, and a Visitor Center in the restored historic Jacob Tome Gas House that includes a Northern Map Turtle habitat and education center. Come to our town to enjoy boating, fishing, a stroll along the scenic waterfront promenade, and step back in time along historic Main Street to visit our great restaurants and shops.

Rising Sun

Rising Sun got its unique name from an old tavern located in the center of town in the 1700s that had a sign with a picture of a sunrise. Since this was a popular watering hole located at a point where five wagon trails all came together, many travelers and frontiersmen were known to say, "We'll meet at the Rising Sun," and so the name of the town was established. A little known fact, its beautiful rolling hills and landscape were originally part of the Nottingham Lots of Pennsylvania, and were part of a land dispute between William Penn of Pennsylvania and the Proprietary Governor of Maryland, Charles Calvert, 5th Baron of Baltimore. This border conflict waged for years and was actually known as Cresap's War. When the Mason-Dixon Line was established and a new boundary line between Maryland and Pennsylvania was created, Rising Sun was officially made part of Cecil County, Maryland. Limestone benchmarks can be found in the area marking the Mason-Dixon Line.

UnWined on the Water: A home for guests along the Elk River

After a fire damaged his first location in North East two years before, John Bragg opened his second UnWined on the Water in Elkton in March 2020, on the same day that Maryland Governor Larry Hogan closed state restaurants to indoor dining due to the arrival of COVID-19.

Undaunted, the new restaurant persevered. Soon, crowds began to arrive at the end of Plum Point Road to take home a wide assortment of pub food, appetizers, salads and entrees. Later that year, when the restrictions were lifted and the doors of UnWined on the Water officially opened, those who had merely just driven through during the darkest days of the pandemic stayed for the food, the atmosphere and the courteous commitment of the restaurant's staff – all in close proximity to some of the most stunning views of the Elk River imaginable.

The intimate restaurant at the edge of a peninsula was a big hit.

"UnWined on the Water is surrounded on three sides by water, and from any table, you get beautiful views, whether you are outside on the deck or inside," Bragg said. "You may first arrive for the view, but you're staying for the food, the atmosphere, the live music and the friendliness of the staff."

To flip through UnWined on the Water's menu is to witness the diversity of its offerings that come from the vision of Bragg and chef Miguel Rivera. From table to table on any given day is to see a date night dinner of Chesapeake Prime Rib and Filet Oscar; the casual fare of pub grub with a unique twist; a plentiful children's menu; and a wide assortment of beverages to enjoy.

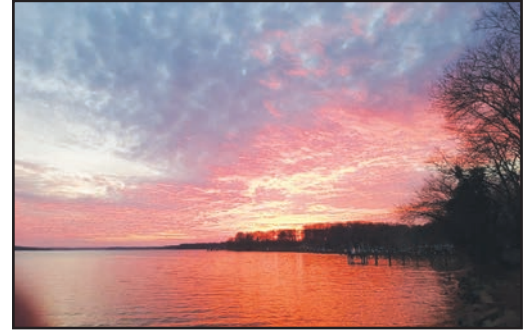

"I wanted to create a menu that allows everyone to feel a level of comfort no matter what their tastes are on any particular visit," Bragg said. "Most who come to a waterfront restaurant expect to see a menu made up of inexpensive bar food, but here, everything we serve – from sandwiches to our entrees – is made with fresh products on a daily basis."

If there is one intangible about UnWined on the Water that has made it so popular, it is one that is felt and not tasted. When Bragg was an undergraduate at the University of Delaware, he learned the restaurant business at a small diner in Newark, where his jobs ranged from busboy to dishwasher to short-order cook.

"There was something about the gift of being able to serve others that immediately resonated with me," said Bragg, who has over 25 years in the restaurant industry. "Ever since then, my focus – and the focus of those on my staff – has been on our guests. It's treating them as if we are inviting them into our home."

At Unwined on the Water, the hospitality extends not just from adults to children, but also to four-legged kids, that now includes an Instagram page called "Dogs of UnWined on the Water," that features a growing pictorial of some of the many dogs that accompany the restaurant's guests.

"I have always been one of those people who does everything he can to ensure that other people are getting the most out of the experiences I provide for them," Bragg said. "Family has always meant everything to me, and that feeling extends to everyone who works here. It is a collective mission by all of us – servers, chefs, bartenders – and to be able to see all of that magic happen is our pleasure. That's always been our goal – to create a place that people enjoy coming to."

In addition to a diverse menu, live music and the camaraderie of its guests, UnWined on the Water offers spectacular views of the Elk River at sunset.

UnWined on the Water is also well known for its friendly and courteous staff, who treat guests like family.

From its outdoor deck to its cozy fireplace area decorated for every holiday, UnWined on the Water offers its guests a place to relax and unwind.

UnWined on the Water is located at 285 Plum Point Road in Elkton. To learn more about its menu and special events throughout the year, visit www.unwinedmd.com or call 443-406-3947.

Agriculture is at the core of Cecil County's rural heritage and quality of life.

Cecil County comprises 222,824 acres, approximately 33% of which is farmland. The working landscapes are devoted mainly to cash grain crops – corn, soybeans, wheat, hay, and barley. Other land uses include tree fruits, such as apples, peaches, and pears, table grapes and berries, nurseries, apiaries for honey and beeswax, a wide variety of vegetables, and livestock production (beef, pork, poultry, and more).

Community Supported Agriculture or CSA memberships are available year-round thanks to the use of high tunnels and greenhouses. CSAs allows you to receive a box of fresh produce weekly, your share of the farm's harvest. Your membership payment funds the farms up-front planting and operating costs. Traditional U-Pick operations, roadside stands and farmers markets also offer fresh, seasonal fruits, honey, berries, and vegetables.

Warwick Mushroom Farm, the largest operation on one site with almost a half-million square feet under roof, uses the most modern growing technology on their farm in southern Cecil County.

Our climate is great for growing ornamental plants and trees as well. We are home to several large wholesale nurseries that transport their products all over the U.S..

Horses are big business in Maryland and Cecil County is home to equine operations of all sizes, including the Fair Hill Training Center, the most innovative Thoroughbred training center in Maryland; Select Breeders Services International Headquarters, Hassler Dressage's world-class facility at Riveredge, Winbak Farm - the largest Standardbred operation in North America, Northview Stallion Station – a renowned Thoroughbred operation, and numerous smaller operations housing rehabilitation facilities, therapeutic riding, and lessons for people of all ages. Cecil County is also home to the Maryland 5 Star, an international Olympic level eventing competition and one of only 7 of its kind in the world.

Diversification of traditional farming in Cecil County includes vineyards and wineries, farm breweries and distilleries, cheese, butter, yogurt, and ice cream, free-range meats, poultry and eggs – all available from your local farmer/grower/producer. Many producers also now offer farm fresh products delivered right to your door year-round!

To find a local farm store or market near you visit www.cecilgrown.com

Veterans Outreach Ministry

By Betsy Brewer Brantner
Contributing Writer

Veterans Outreach Ministry (VOM) was created and mentored by John DiMeglio, who wasn't a veteran. He sought guidance from veterans in his church, and after many prayers, VOM was created. The organization was sponsored by Oasis Church (formerly Friendship Baptist at 2200 Glasgow Avenue, Newark, Del.) and with guidance from Pastor James Chevalier, a discussion began about creating a non-profit 501 (c)(3) organization in March of 2014.

VOM started with four members from the Oasis Church congregation serving as the board of Directors: Tom Hogate, U.S. Navy; Steve Hague, U.S. Air Force; Colin Diggs, U.S. Air Force; and John DiMeglio. As the Board of Directors, they created the Bylaws, Mission, Purpose and Statement of Faith.

In 2015, the non-profit became a member of Cecil County Chamber of Commerce in Elkton, Md. This was done to allow greater visibility in New Castle and Cecil Counties and to allow members to attend the Chamber's outreach events.

This enabled VOM to expand its reach to new and existing businesses and organizations, and thus allow them to give greater support to veterans.

In September of 2017, the non-profit became a member of the Middletown Chamber of Commerce in Middletown, Del. and Volunteer Delaware in Dover, Del. Also in 2017, VOM became supporters of Victory Village located at 554 Port Penn Road in Middletown, Del., a transitional veteran's housing project. They are also a part of the National Veterans Assistance Coalition (NVAC) which has a mission of helping veterans receive the benefits and services they have earned, as well as housing, until they are able to be on their own. Victory Village opened their doors to the first veteran in the fall of 2016.

VOM celebrated their fifth anniversary in 2019 with expansion into Delaware, Chester County, and the Philadelphia area. The organization received a certificate for these accomplishments from Cecil County Chamber of Commerce at their 2019 Business Spotlight.

VOM has added three more members to the Board of Directors, with a total of seven members now on the Board.

New board members are Rebecca Rondone, owner of Pura Vida Yoga and Physical Training, Al Grimminger, retired; and Glenn Ahrens, Christian Ministries Inc.

VOM continues their outreach with a variety of events and programs, including the following:

Veterans Roundtable Discussion which allows veterans and businesses to come together to support veterans and their families to succeed in their spiritual life in the community environment.

Tom Hogate is chairman of the board for the Veteran's Outreach Ministry. Hogate is a veteran of the U.S. Navy Seabees from 1960 thru 1966, with duty stations at Kodiak Island AK, Camp Kisner, Okinawa, and Manila Philippines, with a home base at Port Hueneme CA, the main Seabees base of operations.

Thank You Veterans Brunch held at various locations once a year, with food donated by others in order to thank veterans for their service. It also serves as a meet-and-greet with other veterans.

Weekly Bible study and worship group meeting.

In January 2019, VOM offered corporate sponsor and partner agreements with a Bronze Tier ($200), A Silver Tier ($400) and a Gold Tier ($500). For more information on becoming a corporate sponsor/ partner of VOM, please contact Tom Hogate at 1-302-229-1819.

Hogate said even during the pandemic, God has blessed VOM.

"We continue to be blessed. People continue to call, asking for help or to help us. We are happy to work with other organizations any way we can," Hogate said. "Going forward in 2022, we plan to continue to help veterans and families in our Christ-centered ministry."

Hogate is pleased with the direction of VOM.

"Our supporters are happy and we continue to get donations to support our veterans. We distribute a magazine, "VOM News," to businesses and individuals, sending out 500 copies every quarter. Just call me at 1-302-229-1819 and we will send a copy. Our future looks bright," he said.

Please visit the VOM website at: www.veteransoutreachministries.org to learn more about the organization.

HISTORY

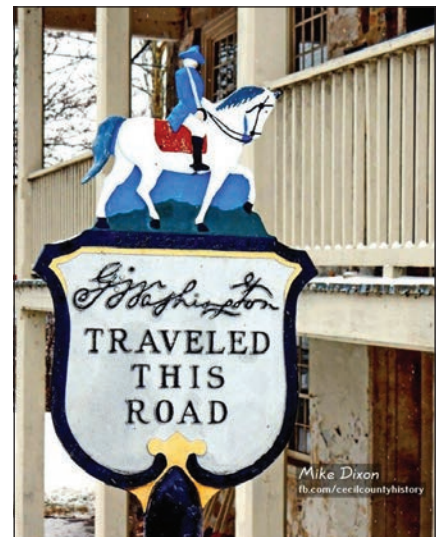

By Land and By Sea

Cecil County is steeped in American history, and has many historic sites and districts, churches and museums. American Indians were the earliest inhabitants. "White men" arrived by ship in the early 1600s as part of an expedition led by one of Cecil's most famous visitors - Captain John Smith. He and his men explored the rivers and met the native American residents living along their shorelines. Because of Cecil's strategic location at the headwaters of the Chesapeake Bay, it became a bustling transportation route during the colonial era. Wares and travelers, including famous founding fathers, arrived at and departed from its ports, and traveled by horse-drawn wagons along the county's dusty roads.

In the early 19th century, less than one year after President James Madison persuaded Congress to embark on a second war with England, the British blockaded the Chesapeake Bay and sailed up the Elk River. It was April of 1813. They traveled the Elk, North East, and Sassafras Rivers and burned waterfront houses and buildings of commerce at Frenchtown, Fredericktown, and Principio Furnace. Due to the action and bravery of local citizens, the British were unable to reach the county seat of Elkton, thus could not burn the town. They considered setting their sights on Port Deposit along the Susquehanna River, but reconsidered.

During the Civil War, Cecil became a border county in a border state, with some citizens supporting the Union, and others the Confederacy. No battles took place in this part of Maryland, but there were notable people and happenings. What is now the Town of Perryville became a staging area for Union troops and supplies as well as the site of a "Mule School" which readied the animals for troop transport and war. Snow's Battery was one of the county's notable Civil War units from Port Deposit, which battled alongside Union forces at Antietam. Many Cecil County men left their homes and families to fight on both sides, with and against family and neighbors.

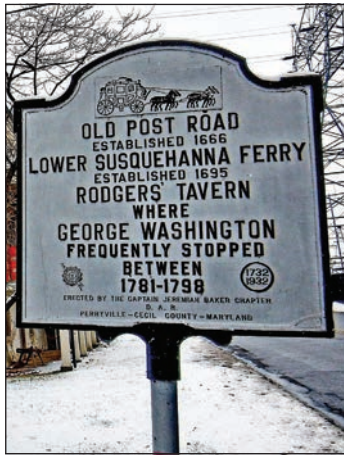

A drive through Cecil County today will take visitors past exquisite manor homes, 18th century churches, and covered bridges. Roadside historic markers tout the area's history including inns, taverns, and plantations where folks like Lafayette and Washington hung their hats. Travelers can visit the C&D Canal Museum, or Mount Harmon - a tobacco plantation south of Cecilton. They can tour Upper Bay Museum, or Sinking Springs Herb Farm where a sycamore tree that sprouted in the 1500s spreads its shade over an 18th Century log farmhouse.

Rodgers Tavern stands on the east bank of the Susquehanna River in Perryville. The tavern is a monument to our country's early history and a reminder of a past way of life in Cecil County. Built in the early eighteenth century, the tavern was known first as the Ferry House or Stevenson's Tavern and was located next to a ferry established in 1695.

The Rodgers family was actively involved in supporting the American cause during the Revolutionary War. In 1775, John Rodgers raised and commanded a company of militia for the defense of Maryland. Because of the Tavern's strategic location on the main thoroughfare, and the owner's patriotic tendencies, it was a favorite stopping place for such Revolutionary figures as George Washington, Lafayette, and Rochambeau.

Other distinguished visitors included Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. Just one year after John Rodgers bought the tavern, in 1781, Washington brought officers and troops through the Lower Ferry Crossing on his way to his victorious campaign against Cornwallis at Yorktown, Virginia.

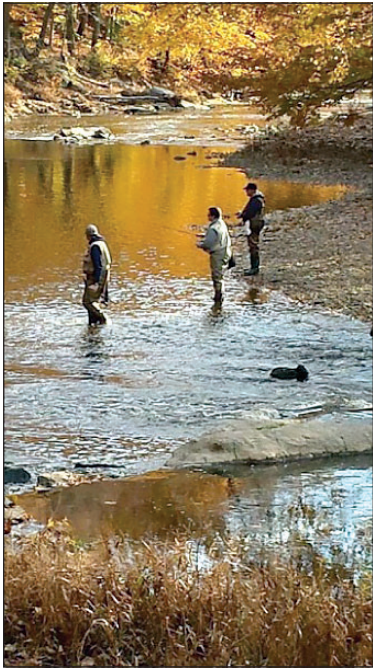

The Tome School for Boys, originally located on Main Street in Port Deposit, Maryland was founded by Jacob Tome as a nonsectarian college preparatory school for boys. It opened for boarders and received its first students in 1894. It was part of a system of schools that began with kindergarten and extended through high school that was collectively known as the Jacob Tome Institute. The Tome School is significant in military history as the location of the Naval Academy Preparatory School (NAPS) from 1943 to 1974, excepting the years 1949 to 1951. The NAPS, the third oldest school in the U.S. Navy after the Naval Academy and the Naval War College, prepares enlisted candidates in the Navy and Marine Corps for admission to the Naval Academy. The NAPS was located in the Tome School buildings for a total of 29 years covering a period of three major wars, during which the school played a continuing role in providing naval leadership for those conflicts.

MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

Maryland 5 Star at Fair Hill

By Marcella Peyre-Ferry
Contributing Writer

The inaugural Maryland 5 Star at Fair Hill (Elkton, Md.) is in the books as a great success, with plans for even more coming at the next event, which will be held from Oct. 13 to 16.

The highest level of competition in the equestrian sport of eventing is the five-star level. There are just seven five-star events in the world, and only two in the United States. A three-phased event combining dressage, cross country, and stadium jumping disciplines, the sport tests horses and their riders in precision, speed, and endurance as no other riding sport does.

The Fair Hill Special Event Zone was created at The Fair Hill Natural Resources Management Area in Elkton. In addition to a new cross-country course, state-of-the-art dressage and show jumping arenas were constructed to host this elite competition and others.

"We learned a great deal from the inaugural event and the areas that can be improved to enhance both the competitor and spectator experience in 2022, and we're also going to look to see if there are other special events we can add. We want the event to be a well-rounded family event," Maryland 5 Star at Fair Hill President and CEO Jeff Newman said.

The first-year attendance of over 21,000 exceeded expectations in spite of pandemic limitations. Eventing fans were joined by many first-time spectators.

"It was really good to see that we introduced new people to the sport. They understand it's a multi-day international competition now and not a race," Newman said. "We hope we've created an awareness of both the event and Fair Hill and build on that momentum moving forward."

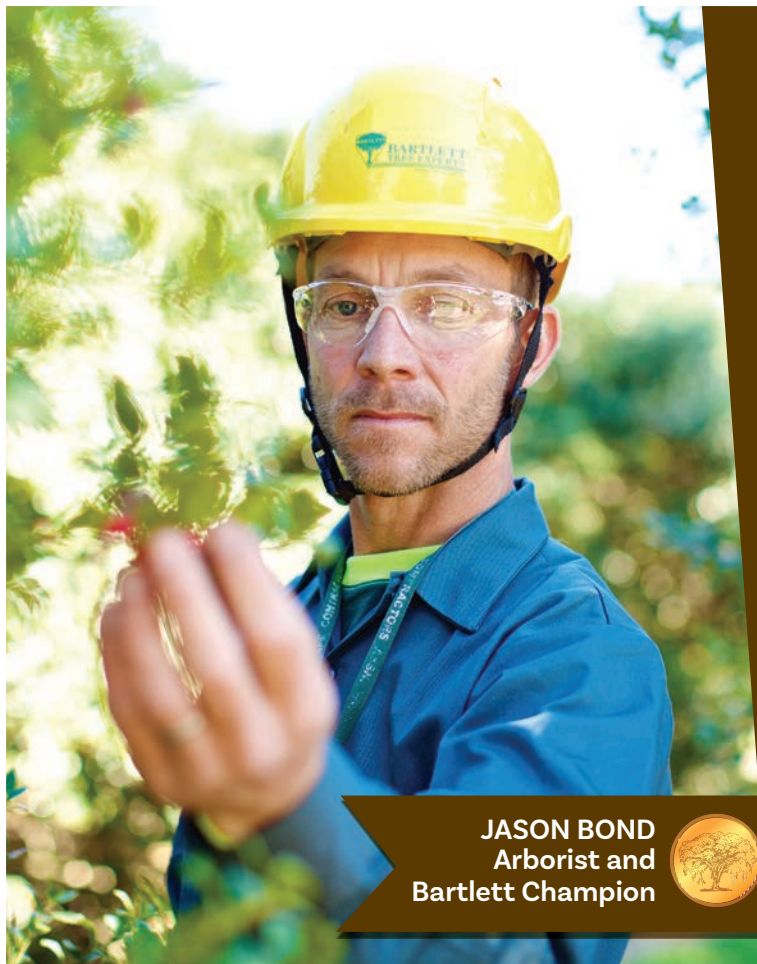

Winning in 2021 was local eventer and American Olympic Team member Boyd Martin riding On Cue, followed by Britain's Oliver Townend (World #1) on Cooley Master Class in second place and New Zealander Tim Price (World #2) on Xavier Faer in third. This was the first American victory at a 5-Star level event in 13 years.

"From a results standpoint, it couldn't have gone any better, having Boyd win and then of course, having the world number one and the world number two following Boyd on the podium," Newman said.

For those who did not get a chance to experience the inaugural Maryland 5 Star at Fair Hill, viewing opportunities are still available on the website at Maryland5Star.us. The website along with facebook, twitter and Instagram are also the best places to find out more about the 2022 event as it approaches.

"Hopefully, people will realize that the sport of eventing and the level of competition that we're bringing is something really special and unique to see, and that this could be a great event for Maryland for years to come," Newman said.
